UTAH STATE PARKS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Geocache Adventure

If you've never been on a geocache adventure, 2007 is your year! Geocaching is a kind of high-tech treasure hunt using a global positioning satellite (GPS) unit. Participants enter coordinates into a GPS unit, which leads them to the hidden geocache. Inside each cache, you'll find free gifts, and if you're lucky, a limited edition 50th Anniversary commemorative coin. This "geocoin" will be placed randomly statewide, throughout the year. All participating parks offer free rental of a Magellan GPS unit to anyone who wants to play.

Golden Spike Empire Region

This is pioneer country. Don't miss the multi-cache adventure at Antelope Island and take in some history at East Canyon and Willard Bay!

Willard Bay State Park

N 41° 24.923 W 112° 03.211

To find this cache, look behind the panel of the nation's symbol.

Antelope Island State Park

This multi-cache game leads to signs at various locations in the park. Locate these signs then unscramble the letters for a hint to unveil your final challenge. All letters are found in the main text of each sign.

Geocaching Tips

• Take some time to familiarize yourself with the GPS unit before you attempt to locate the cache. Park personnel can answer basic questions about GPS.

• Using a park map in addition to your GPS unit can be very helpful, since togographic features, buildings, monuments and trail names will be labeled on the map.

Dinosaurland Region

This area has a long history of exciting discoveries, as it holds much of the state's dinosaur fossil record. But fossils aren't the only thing you'll discover in Dinosaurland! There are a few geocaches too! Kids can pretend to be paleontologists, hunting for clues to the past and unearthing their own treasures! Adults will enjoy the scenery and challenge along the way. Just take care not to disturb any fossils or dinosaur tracks while you hunt for caches.

Rules of the Game: Keep Geocaching Fun and Safe!

• All coordinates were correct at the time of printing. Please visit www.geocaching.com for updates, changes, and hours of accessibility.

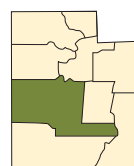

• Follow all posted rules at each park you visit. If you're having trouble locating a cache, ask your local park ranger for hints and tips.

• All caches have been placed in relatively well-traveled areas. There's no need to leave designated trails or disturb natural features to find a cache. Please respect the land as you explore.

• Never remove or relocate a cache. Once you find the cache, claim your prize and leave the cache exactly as you found it for future guests to discover.

• Most state parks are fee areas. Please support
